Sub-Section Instructions Overall International Labor Standards Compliance Guidance: Child labor is work that deprives childre n of their childhood, their potential and their dignity, and that is harmful to physical and mental dev elopment. It refers to work that is mentally, physically, socially or morally dangerous and harmful to c hildren and interferes with their schooling by depriving them of the opportunity to attend school, b y obliging them to leave school prematurely, or by requiring them to combine school attendance wi th excessively long and heavy work. In its most extreme forms, children are involved in illegal activit ies, or in work that exposes them to physical, sexual or psychological abuse. However, not all work d one by children is classified as child labor that should be eliminated. Work that does not affect childr en's health and personal development or interfere with their schooling can be constructive. This incl udes activities such as helping parents around the home, helping in a family business or earning pock et money outside school time. Whether or not work being carried out by children constitutes child l abor depends on the child's age, the type and hours of work performed, and the impact of the work on the child's health, development and access to education. In addition to determining whether the re are child laborers working at the facility premises, the possibility of workers taking work home sho uld be monitored. If work is performed outside the facility premises, determine whether underage fa mily members are doing it. Applicable legal standards include: ILO Core Conventions, C138 Minimum Age Convention, 1973 and C182 Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention, 1999, which provide the ba seline standards for child labor; other conventions in force in the country; applicable legislation; Coll ective Bargaining Agreements and provisions in employment contracts that exceed legal requireme nts Other relevant ILO documents: R146 Minimum Age Recommendation, 1973; R190 Worst Forms o f Child Labour Recommendation, 1999 Age Documentation RH-CHI-1 Does the facility verify minimum age requirements prior to hiring workers? Forced Labor
Sub-Section Ir	nstructions

Overall International Labor Standard Compliance Guidance: Forced labor is work exacted under the menace of penalty and for which the person has not offered him/herself voluntarily. Forced labor vio lates the basic human right to work in freedom and freely choose one's work. Two elements must b e present in addition to labor, which refers to all types of work, service and employment, whether fo rmal or informal, regardless of industry or sector. Labour does not include compulsory education or c ompulsory vocational training, however, trainings required in connection with employment would b e considered labor. 1) The first element is that the worker must be subject to threat of penalty. Look for coercion on the part of the employer (e.g., action taken to control, manipulate, deceive and/or o verride a person's will). However, bear in mind that for vulnerable workers, a relatively small amount of coercion may lead to forced labor. For example, workers who are migrants, pregnant or from ethni c minorities often are vulnerable and therefore may be more susceptible to forced labor. Some possi ble examples of penalties that could be imposed or threatened include: • Beatings, torture or sexual assault; • Restrictions on freedom of movement, e.g., prohibiting workers from leaving the workplac e or living accommodation; • Financial penalties, e.g., burdening workers with unmanageable debt o r delaying wage payments to keep workers on the job; • Reporting workers to the authorities (polic e, immigration, etc.); • Deportation, for example in the case of migrants in irregular situations; • De nying workers access to their personal documents; • Termination or exclusion from future employm ent; • Exclusion from community and social life; • Refusal of food, shelter or other necessities; • Tra nsfer to worse working conditions, and • Removal of rights or privileges. Coercion is an indicator of forced labor regardless of whether it occurs during regular hours or overtime. Subjecting workers to the coercive tactics listed below under the Coercion compliance point would be an indicator of forc ed labor, even if the tactics are used solely to force workers to work overtime. In a limited set of circ umstances, forced labor also can arise when workers are forced to work overtime through economic coercion. The Forced Labour and Overtime compliance point addresses those situations. 2) The seco nd element of forced labor is that the worker has not accepted the work voluntarily. Workers must fr eely consent to accept the work and they must be free to leave the job and the workplace at all tim es. Deciding whether work is performed voluntarily often involves looking at • the vulnerability of t he worker and • external and indirect pressures that make it difficult for workers to choose not to w ork, for example, non-payment of wages, or denying workers access to their identity documents. A pplicable legal standards include: ILO Core Conventions, C29 Forced Labour Convention, 1930 (and Pr otocol), and C105 Abolition of Forced Labour Convention, 1957, which provide the baseline standards for forced labor; other conventions in force in the country; applicable legislation; Collective Bargaini ng Agreements and provisions in employment contracts that exceed legal requirements Other rele vant ILO documents: C181 Private Employment Agencies Convention, 1997 and C1 Hours of Work (In

Discrimination	on
Sub-Section In	structions

Overall International Labor Standard Compliance Guidance: Discrimination includes any distinction b ased on race, color, sex, religion, political opinion, national extraction or social origin, which results in unequal treatment. Other grounds of discrimination may be included in national law, such as disabilit y, HIV/AIDS status, age and sexual orientation. Discrimination may be direct or indirect and does not have to be intentional. Indirect discrimination refers to apparently neutral practices, which in fact res ult in unequal treatment of people with certain characteristics. Distinctions are permissible when th ey are necessary because of the inherent requirements of the particular job, although this exception is rare. Also, measures to protect certain categories of workers are acceptable when they are provide d for under international labor Conventions and Recommendations, such as maternity protection. Di stinctions also may be permissible under national laws designed to help groups who need special pro tection, for example, laws that offer preferential treatment to women in hiring in order to remedy t he effects of past discrimination. Applicable legal standards include: ILO Core Conventions, C100 Eq ual Remuneration Convention, 1951 and C111 Discrimination (Employment and Occupation) Conventi on, 1958, which provide the baseline standards for discrimination; other conventions in force in the c ountry; applicable legislation; Collective Bargaining Agreements and provisions in employment cont racts that exceed legal requirements Other relevant ILO documents: R90 Equal Remuneration Reco mmendation, 1951; R111 Discrimination (Employment and Occupation) Recommendation, 1958; C156

Working Ho	urs
Sub-Section I	nstructions
	Working hours refers to hours worked in an activity during normal periods of work, plus overtime, ti me spent at the place of work, when the worker is at the disposal of the employer. Working Hours ar e a fundamental component to the employment process and limitations (legal or otherwise) should be respected. For industrial enterprises, international standards limit regular (pre-overtime) working hours to 8 hours each day, 48 hours each week, subject to certain exceptions. They also say that wor kers must have at least one day off in seven. The sub-section below includes questions on items suc h as working hour records, regular and overtime hours, breaks, and rest days.

Facility Response: No Verification Selection: Accurate Forced Labor Sub-Section Instructions

Overall International Labor Standard Compliance Guidance: Forced labor is work exacted under the menace of penalty and for which the person has not offered him/herself voluntarily. Forced labor vio lates the basic human right to work in freedom and freely choose one's work. Two elements must b e present in addition to labor, which refers to all types of work, service and employment, whether fo rmal or informal, regardless of industry or sector. Labour does not include compulsory education or c ompulsory vocational training, however, trainings required in connection with employment would b e considered labor. 1) The first element is that the worker must be subject to threat of penalty. Look for coercion on the part of the employer (e.g., action taken to control, manipulate, deceive and/or o verride a person's will). However, bear in mind that for vulnerable workers, a relatively small amount of coercion may lead to forced labor. For example, workers who are migrants, pregnant or from ethni c minorities often are vulnerable and therefore may be more susceptible to forced labor. Some possi ble examples of penalties that could be imposed or threatened include: • Beatings, torture or sexual assault; • Restrictions on freedom of movement, e.g., prohibiting workers from leaving the workplac e or living accommodation; • Financial penalties, e.g., burdening workers with unmanageable debt o r delaying wage payments to keep workers on the job; • Reporting workers to the authorities (polic e, immigration, etc.); • Deportation, for example in the case of migrants in irregular situations; • De nying workers access to their personal documents; • Termination or exclusion from future employm ent; • Exclusion from community and social life; • Refusal of food, shelter or other necessities; • Tra nsfer to worse working conditions, and • Removal of rights or privileges. Coercion is an indicator of forced labor regardless of whether it occurs during regular hours or overtime. Subjecting workers to the coercive tactics listed below under the Coercion compliance point would be an indicator of forc ed labor, even if the tactics were used solely to force workers to work overtime. In a limited set of ci rcumstances, forced labor also can arise when workers are forced to work overtime through econom ic coercion. The Forced Labour and Overtime compliance point addresses those situations. 2) The se cond element of forced labor is that the worker has not accepted the work voluntarily. Workers mus t freely consent to accept the work and they must be free to leave the job and the workplace at all t imes. Deciding whether work is performed voluntarily often involves looking at • the vulnerability o f the worker and • external and indirect pressures that make it difficult for workers to choose not to work, for example, non-payment of wages, or denying workers access to their identity documents. Applicable legal standards include the ILO Core Conventions, C29 Forced Labour Convention, 1930 (a nd Protocol), and C105 Abolition of Forced Labour Convention, 1957, which provide the baseline stan dards for forced labor; other conventions in force in the country; applicable legislation; Collective Bar gaining Agreements and provisions in employment contracts that exceed legal requirements Othe r relevant ILO documents: C181 Private Employment Agencies Convention, 1997 and C1 Hours of Wor k (Industry) Convention, 1919

Wages and	Benefits
	Wages and Benefits refer to the compensation a worker receives - or should be receiving - as a resul t of their work in the facility. Wages refer specifically to the monetary (cash) wages received. And be nefits cover any other form of compensation the worker receives other than monetary (cash) wages. Minimum wages may be set by law or regulation, by wage boards, councils, courts or tribunals, or by collective agreement. Minimum wage rates may be different across groups of worker, sectors of eco nomic activity, or by geographical location. The sub-section below includes questions on items such as minimum wage, overtime wage, wage payment, deductions, in-kind benefits and various forms of worker leave.

Section Description: The purpose of the Worker Treatment section is to understand how the facility treats workers while they are in the facility. From freedom of movement to harassment, this section seeks to understand if workers are treated in a fair and responsible manner, in line with applicable le gal standards. Social and Labor topics within this section include: • Forced Labor • Harassment and A buse • Discrimination • Discipline • Facility Comments

Forced Labor

Sub-Section Instructions

Overall International Labor Standard Compliance Guidance: Forced labor is work exacted under the menace of penalty and for which the person has not offered him/herself voluntarily. Forced labor vio lates the basic human right to work in freedom and freely choose one's work. Two elements must b e present in addition to labor, which refers to all types of work, service and employment, whether fo rmal or informal, regardless of industry or sector. Labour does not include compulsory education or c ompulsory vocational training, however, trainings required in connection with employment would b e considered labor. 1) The first element is that the worker must be subject to threat of penalty. Look for coercion on the part of the employer (e.g., action taken to control, manipulate, deceive and/or o verride a person's will). However, bear in mind that for vulnerable workers, a relatively small amount of coercion may lead to forced labor. For example, workers who are migrants, pregnant or from ethni c minorities often are vulnerable and therefore may be more susceptible to forced labor. Some possi ble examples of penalties that could be imposed or threatened include: • Beatings, torture or sexual assault; • Restrictions on freedom of movement, e.g., prohibiting workers from leaving the workplac e or living accommodation; • Financial penalties, e.g., burdening workers with unmanageable debt o r delaying wage payments to keep workers on the job: • Reporting workers to the authorities (polic e, immigration, etc.); • Deportation, for example in the case of migrants in irregular situations; • De nying workers access to their personal documents; • Termination or exclusion from future employm ent; • Exclusion from community and social life; • Refusal of food, shelter or other necessities; • Tra nsfer to worse working conditions, and • Removal of rights or privileges. Coercion is an indicator of forced labor regardless of whether it occurs during regular hours or overtime. Subjecting workers to the coercive tactics listed below under the Coercion compliance point would be an indicator of forc ed labor, even if the tactics were used solely to force workers to work overtime. In a limited set of ci rcumstances, forced labor also can arise when workers are forced to work overtime through econom ic coercion. The Forced Labour and Overtime compliance point addresses those situations. 2) The se cond element of forced labor is that the worker has not accepted the work voluntarily. Workers mus t freely consent to accept the work and they must be free to leave the job and the workplace at all t imes. Deciding whether work is performed voluntarily often involves looking at • the vulnerability of f the worker and • external and indirect pressures that make it difficult for workers to choose not to work, for example, non-payment of wages, or denying workers access to their identity documents. Applicable legal standards include the ILO Core Conventions, C29 Forced Labour Convention, 1930 (a nd Protocol), and C105 Abolition of Forced Labour Convention, 1957, which provide the baseline stan dards for forced labor; other conventions in force in the country; applicable legislation; Collective Bar gaining Agreements and provisions in employment contracts that exceed legal requirements Othe r relevant ILO documents: C181 Private Employment Agencies Convention, 1997 and C1 Hours of Wor k (Industry) Convention, 1919

Discrimination	on .

Overall International Labor Standard Compliance Guidance: Discrimination includes any distinction b ased on race, color, sex, religion, political opinion, national extraction or social origin, which results in unequal treatment. Other grounds of discrimination may be included in national law, such as disabilit y, HIV/AIDS status, age and sexual orientation. Discrimination may be direct or indirect and does not have to be intentional. Indirect discrimination refers to apparently neutral practices, which in fact res ult in unequal treatment of people with certain characteristics. Distinctions are permissible when th ev are necessary because of the inherent requirements of the particular job, although this exception is rare. Also, measures to protect certain categories of workers are acceptable when they are provide d for under international labor Conventions and Recommendations, such as maternity protection. Di stinctions also may be permissible under national laws designed to help groups who need special pro tection, for example, laws that offer preferential treatment to women in hiring in order to remedy t he effects of past discrimination. Applicable legal standards include the ILO Core Conventions, C100 Equal Remuneration Convention, 1951 and C111 Discrimination (Employment and Occupation) Conve ntion, 1958, which provide the baseline standards for discrimination; other conventions in force in th e country; applicable legislation; Collective Bargaining Agreements and provisions in employment c ontracts that exceed legal requirements Other relevant ILO documents: R90 Equal Remuneration R ecommendation, 1951; R111 Discrimination (Employment and Occupation) Recommendation, 1958; C1 56 Workers with Family Responsibilities Convention, 1981; R165 Workers with Family Responsibilities

	Section Description: The purpose of the Worker Involvement section is to understand how the facility involves workers in the improvement process within the facility. From participation in Freedom of Association to Grievance systems, this section seeks to understand the facility's mechanisms in place to facilitate dialogue and action between management and workers. Social and Labor topics within this section include: • Freedom of Association and Collective Bargaining • Worker Representatives • Bipartite committee(s) • Grievance Systems • Worker Feedback • Facility Comments

Sub-Section Ir	nstructions estimate the state of the state Overall International Labor Standard Compliance Guidance: Freedom of association means the right of workers to join together to create organizations (unions) that represent them. It also applies to e mployer organizations. Collective bargaining is the process of negotiation between unions and employers, usually on working conditions and terms of employment. Both are fundamental rights, and the y are linked together. Without freedom of association, collective bargaining cannot work because the views of the workers cannot be properly represented. Workers themselves must be free to choose how they are to be represented, and employers must not interfere in this process. Applicable legal st andards include the ILO Core Conventions, C87 Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organize Convention, 1948; C98 Right to Organize and Collective Bargaining Convention 1949, which provide the baseline standards for freedom of association and collective bargaining; other conventions in force in the country; applicable legislation; Collective Bargaining Agreements and provision in employment contracts that exceed legal requirements of Other relevant ILO documents: C135 Workers' Representatives Convention, 1971: C154 Collective Bargaining Convention, 1981; R143 Worker

Workplace Cooperation
Sub-Section Instructions

Beyond the consultations, dialogue and collective bargaining engaged in between trade unions and employers, other measures may be put in place to promote consultation and co-operation between employers and workers. For example, workers may elect (non-union) representatives to engage in di alogue with the employer, and/or facilities may establish bipartite committees, which include both workers' representatives (union or non-union) and employer representatives. Some jurisdictions legally require these types of measures. The questions in this section look at different types of measures to promote workplace cooperation.

	Overall International Labor Standard Compliance Guidance: Improvements in occupational safety and health enhance productivity by reducing the number of interruptions in the manufacturing process, by reducing absences, by decreasing the number of accidents and by improving work efficiency. Safety is preventative. The cooperation of workers and employers is essential. While the government has obligations outlined in the ILO Conventions, Protocols, and Recommendations, employers and workers also have responsibilities and rights to ensure occupational safety and health. 	Section Description: The purpose of the Termination section is to understand the facility's social and labor practices in the final stages of employment. Termination is the voluntary or involuntary ending of the employment relationship. Termination is typically voluntary in cases of resignation or retireme nt and involuntary in cases of dismissal or layoffs. Social and Labor topics within this section include: • Forced Labor • Employment Practices • Discrimination • Facility Comments

	Overall International Labor Standard Compliance Guidance: Forced labor is work exacted under the menace of penalty and for which the person has not offered him/herself voluntarily. Forced labor vio lates the basic human right to work in freedom and freely choose one's work. Two elements must be present in addition to labor, which refers to all types of work, service and employment, whether for mal or informal, regardless of industry or sector. Labour does not include compulsory education or c ompulsory vocational training, however, trainings required in connection with employment would be considered labor. 1) The first element is that the worker must be subject to threat of penalty. Look for coercion on the part of the employer (e.g., action taken to control, manipulate, deceive and/or o verride a person's will). However, bear in mind that for vulnerable workers, a relatively small amount of coercion may lead to forced labor. For example, workers who are migrants, pregnant or from ethic minorities often are vulnerable and therefore may be more susceptible to forced labor. Some possible examples of penalties that could be imposed or threatened include: • Beatings, torture or sexual assault; • Restrictions on freedom of movement, e.g., prohibiting workers from leaving the workplace or living accommodation; • Financial penalties, e.g., burdening workers with unmanageable debt or delaying wage payments to keep workers on the job; • Reporting workers to the authorities (polic e, immigration, etc.); • Deportation, for example in the case of migrants in irregular situations; • De nying workers access to their personal documents; • Termination or exclusion from future employment; • Exclusion from community and social life; • Refusal of food, shelter or other necessities; • Transfer to worse working conditions, and • Removal of rights or privileges. Discrimination	on
	Overall International Labor Standard Compliance Guidance: Discrimination includes any distinction b ased on race, color, sex, religion, political opinion, national extraction or social origin, which results in unequal treatment. Other grounds of discrimination may be included in national law, such as disability, HIV/AIDS status, age and sexual orientation. Discrimination may be direct or indirect and does not have to be intentional. Indirect discrimination refers to apparently neutral practices, which in fact result in unequal treatment of people with certain characteristics. Distinctions are permissible when they are necessary because of the inherent requirements of the particular job, although this exception is rare. Also, measures to protect certain categories of workers are acceptable when they are provided for under international labor Conventions and Recommendations, such as maternity protection. Distinctions also may be permissible under national laws designed to help groups who need special protection, for example, laws that offer preferential treatment to women in hiring in order to remedy the effects of past discrimination. Applicable legal standards include the ILO Core Conventions, C100 Equal Remuneration Convention, 1951 and C111 Discrimination (Employment and Occupation) Convention, 1958, which provide the baseline standards for discrimination; other conventions in force in the country; applicable legislation; Collective Bargaining Agreements and provisions in employment contracts that exceed legal requirements Other relevant ILO documents: R90 Equal Remuneration Recommendation, 1951; R111 Discrimination (Employment and Occupation) Recommendation, 1958; C1 56 Workers with Family Responsibilities Convention, 1981; R165 Workers with Family Responsibilities Recommendation, 1981

Section Description: Management Systems related to Social and Labor practices are very facility dep endent. They can take many forms depending upon a facility's size, worker demographics, productio n process and organizational maturity. However, despite their general differences, common themes can be found within most social management systems. With this in mind, the questions below repre sent an information gathering exercise on possible Social and Labor elements the facility might have based on a Plan, Do Check, Act "PDCA" structure. PDCA is framework for managing processes and sys tems and within this tool, covers the following items: "Plan" - Polices and Procedures / Strategy an d Goals "Do" - Roles and Responsibility / Communication and Training "Check" - Self-Assessment "Ac t" - Continuous Improvement The questions listed below are simply a starting point to better under stand the various aspects that might make up a facility's management system. Having - or not havin g - certain items in place is not in and of itself a direct reflection of the overall quality of the manage ment system. As with other sections within this tool, answers simply offer an opportunity to further understand the facility's processes so that additional discussions outside of the tool with interested parties can take place. A note to the respondent: Many of the same social and labor topics mention ed in "Step 1" are also included in the questions below. "Step 1" questions primarily ask about whethe r certain items "exist" or certain actions "are a taking place". While "Step 2" will determine if more for mal management systems exist.
